Introduction

This appendix lists the portions of each organization's charter or other relevant treaties that call for pacific dispute settlement among members. Where possible, the entire relevant section of the document is included. Where the entire section would be too lengthy, a brief summary is provided, allowing the reader to identify relevant sections for further research if needed. Where possible, membership dates and other details were taken from official materials published by the organization in question -- using such sources as official web sites, annual reports, or fact books -- rather than summaries provided by other organizations or scholars.

Sources

Certain sources were used for numerous treaties/organizations, particularly for investigating such matters as dates (e.g., where books or official web sites only list the year when certain states joined or left organizations). These include the following:

- New York Times
- Facts on File
- Keesing's Contemporary Archives / Keesing's Record of World Events
- Lexis-Nexis Academic Universe
- UN Treaty Series

Other sources beyond these are generally listed in each treaty's documentation.

GLOBAL / CROSS-REGIONAL TREATIES

Permanent Court of Arbitration

Dates of Qualification: 9/1900 - present

- The Permanent Court of Arbitration (PCA) by itself does not qualify for this data set, but the 1899 and 1907 Hague treaties that established it do. Technically the PCA does not have any formal membership, but its membership is based on countries who have accepted one or both of the Hague conventions of 1899 and 1907, both of which are included here.
- 1899 Convention for the Pacific Settlement of International Disputes (Hague I): signed 7/29/1899, in force 9/4/1900
- 1907 Convention for the Pacific Settlement of International Disputes (Hague II): signed 10/18/1907, in force 1/26/1910

League of Nations

Dates of Qualification: 1/1920 - 4/1946

- The League was established by the Covenant of the League of Nations, which was signed on 28 April 1919 in Paris; the League formally began life on 10 January 1920 when enough states had signed and ratified the covenant.
- The League of Nations is considered to end on 18 April 1946, when the League's activities officially terminated and all remaining League property was turned over to the new United Nations. The League ceased its political activities during World War II, but technical activities continued (and the League continued to exist) until 4/18/1946.
- Exit dates for League membership were determined by the dates on which members gave notice that they were leaving the organization. Although technically this was followed by a two-year waiting period before membership (and its accompanying obligations) legally expired, states in this two-year period generally did not participate in League activities or consider themselves bound by League responsibilities.
--It is unclear what to do about occupied countries during World War II. For now I have left them coded as League members (unless they specifically withdrew); most of these countries are listed in League sources as being members at the end of the League in 1946.

Pacific Settlement?: Yes (global)

Territorial Integrity?: Yes (violent); see Article 10

Qualifying Document(s)

Covenant of the League of Nations

Article 10: "The Members of the League undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all Members of the League. In case of any such aggression or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression the Council shall advise upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled."

Article 12: "The Members of the League agree that, if there should arise between them any dispute likely to lead to a rupture they will submit the matter either to arbitration or judicial settlement or to enquiry by the Council, and they agree in no case to resort to war until three months after the award by the arbitrators or the judicial decision, or the report by the Council. In any case under this Article the award of the arbitrators or the judicial decision shall be made within a reasonable time, and the report of the Council shall be made within six months after the submission of the dispute."

Article 13: Agreement to submit questions of international law or treaty interpretation to the Permanent Court of International Justice or some similar tribunal

Article 14: Creation of PCIJ

Article 15: Agreement to submit questions not submitted to arbitration/judicial settlement to the League Council

Article 16: Sanctions against resorting to war in disregard of Articles 12, 13, 14

Permanent Court of International Justice (PCIJ)

Dates of Qualification: 9/1921 - 4/1946

- Note that the PCIJ by itself does not qualify for this data set, and membership is included for informational purposes only -- the Optional Clause is the PCIJ's key peaceful dispute settlement obligation.

PCIJ

- The PCIJ is closely related to the League of Nations, although with a somewhat different membership because the PCIJ required signature and ratification of a separate Protocol of Signature for the Statute of the Court (first approved and opened for signature 12/16/1920)

--the Statute of the Court legally went into effect on 9/1/1921 following the ratification of the Protocol by 22 of the 41 signatories; the PCIJ was legally dissolved in April 1946 at the same time as the League of Nations, after holding its last meeting in 1945

- Technically, the PCIJ does not directly call for the peaceful settlement of disputes among its members, although it is essentially the judicial body of the League of Nations -- which does make such a call in its charter, and which includes most of the same countries. I have included signature/ratification of the PCIJ Protocol of Signature in this data set, although I recommend that users employ the PCIJ Optional Clause (see below) rather than simple ratification of the PCIJ protocol, as the Optional Clause indicates acceptance of compulsory PCIJ jurisdiction over disputes among member states.

- I have not found any mention of countries withdrawing their acceptance (or ratification) of the PCIJ Protocol of Signature, so for now all members are coded as maintaining their membership through April 1946

--the following states signed but never ratified the Protocol of Signature: USA (signed 12/2/1929), Argentina (12/28/1935), Costa Rica ("before 1/28/1921"), Egypt (5/30/1939), Guatemala (12/17/1926). Iraq (9/22/1938), Liberia (7/24/1921), Turkey (3/12/1936)

PCIJ Optional Clause

- A number of states that signed the PCIJ's Protocol of Signature also signed the Optional Clause, indicating their acceptance of PCIJ compulsory jurisdiction over their disputes. This clause was opened for signature 12/17/1921.

- The beginning date for each state's acceptance of the Optional Clause is coded as (a) the date of the declaration if ratification is not needed and no specific date of acceptance is given in the declaration; (b) the specified date of acceptance if one is given and no ratification is required, and (c) the date of ratification if required

--two states made declarations under the League Council's resolution of 5/17/1922: Liechtenstein and Monaco

--Grievs (1969): seven states made declarations under the Optional Clause that were legally subject to ratification, but never ratified these declarations (these states are not coded as accepting PCIJ compulsory jurisdiction in this data set): Argentina (signed 12/28/1935), Czechoslovakia (signed 9/19/1929), Egypt (signed 5/30/1939), Guatemala (signed 12/17/1926), Iraq (signed 9/22/1938), Liberia (signed "before 9/1/1921"), and Poland (signed 1/24/1931)

--Grievs (1969): three additional states signed without condition as to ratification but never ratified the Protocol of Signature of the Statute: Costa Rica (signed "before 1/28/1921"), Nicaragua (according to Hudson 1943: 704 and Rosenne 1991: 726 this really was ratified), and Turkey (signed 3/12/1936)

- Several states' dates differ across several sources:

--Nicaragua: Grievs (1969: 66) does not list Nicaragua's declaration as still in effect as of 12/31/1945, but Hudson (1943: 704) lists it as indefinite and Rosenne (1991: 726) lists the original 1929 declaration as still in effect in 1991 -- coded here as continuing for PCIJ through 4/1946

--Paraguay: Grievs (1969: 66) lists Paraguay's declaration as remaining in effect as of 12/31/1945, but Hudson (1943: 704) lists it as withdrawn by decree of 4/26/1938 -- coded here as being withdrawn 4/1938

- Also, many states' declarations under either the PCIJ or ICJ initially covered short periods of time (typically five or ten years), although some were made for more indefinite periods (such as "indefinitely" or "until modified or withdrawn"). When a limited declaration is later renewed, I code the initial declaration as the beginning of acceptance of compulsory jurisdiction, even if there is a slight gap (of several weeks or even months between the announced expiration of the initial declaration and the formal ratification of the revised declaration.

Pacific Settlement?: Yes (global; Optional Clause only)

Territorial Integrity?: No

PCIJ Optional Clause

From Article 36 of the PCIJ Statute:

“The Members of the League of Nations and the States mentioned in the Annex to the Covenant may, either when signing or ratifying the Protocol to which the present Statute is adjoined, or at a later moment, declare that they recognize as compulsory ipso facto and without special agreement, in relation to any other Member or State accepting the same obligation, the jurisdiction of the Court in all or any of the classes of legal disputes concerning:

(a) the interpretation of a treaty;

(b) any question of international law;

(c) the existence of any fact which, if established, would constitute a breach of an international obligation;

(d) the nature or extent of the reparation to be made for the breach of an international obligation.

The declaration referred to above may be made unconditionally or on condition of reciprocity on the part of several or certain Members or States, or for a certain time. “

Kellogg-Briand Pact (Pact of Paris)

Dates of Qualification: 7/1929 - 4/1946

- The Pact was signed in Paris on 27 August 1928, and was proclaimed as having entered into force on 24 July 1929 when 15 signatories had deposited their ratifications in Washington, D.C.
- It is unclear when this pact was considered to have ended (or lost its legal status). It was clearly considered to have been in effect at the start of World War II, as some of the charges against the Axis leaders at the Nuremberg trials involved violations of the Pact in 1939 and 1940. For now I have used the estimated date of April 1946, the same time that the League of Nations and PCIJ legally expired, as the Kellogg-Briand Pact is widely viewed as closely associated with the League of Nations.

Treaty Providing for the Renunciation of War as an Instrument of National Policy

"[the signatories] (...) Persuaded that the time has come when a frank renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy should be made to the end that the peaceful and friendly relations now existing between their peoples may be perpetuated;

Convinced that all changes in their relations with one another should be sought only by pacific means and be the result of a peaceful and orderly process, and that any signatory Power which shall hereafter seek to promote its national interests by resort to war should be denied the benefits furnished by the Treaty; (...) have agree upon the following articles:"

Article I: "The High Contracting Parties solemnly declare in the names of their respective peoples that they condemn recourse to war for the solution of international controversies, and renounce it as an instrument of national policy in their relations with one another."

Article II: "The High Contracting Parties agree that the settlement of solution of all disputes or conflicts of whatever nature or of whatever origin they may be, which may arise among them, shall never be sought except by pacific means."

United Nations (UN)

Dates of Qualification: 10/1945 - present

- The UN was established by the Charter of the United Nations, signed 26 June 1945 in San Francisco; the UN officially came into force on 24 October 1945
- Countries reentering after leaving UN: Indonesia, China (PRC)
 - Yugoslavia was suspended from the UN General Assembly from 1992 until 2000, but retained overall UN membership during this time; Yugoslavia is coded as a member for this entire time in the MTOPS data, as it is in the official UN membership list
 - Somalia remained a UN member during the 1990s according to the official membership list, despite its lack of a central government; the Somali flag was flown in September 2000 for the first time in a decade, when the president of a new provisional Somali government spoke at the UN's Millennium Summit
 - Afghanistan remained a UN member during the 1990s, but the official representative who carried the UN vote was from the previous Afghan government that was overthrown by the Taliban in 1996, rather than the Taliban (which controlled Kabul and the vast majority of the country's territory)

International Court of Justice (ICJ)

Dates of Qualification: 10/1945 - present

• Note that the ICJ by itself does not qualify for this data set, and membership is included for informational purposes only -- the Optional Clause is the ICJ's key peaceful dispute settlement obligation.

ICJ

- The ICJ was established by the Statute of the International Court of Justice (signed 26 June 1945), which was closely associated with the Charter of the United Nations and entered into force 24 October 1945
- Technically, the ICJ does not directly call for the peaceful settlement of disputes among its members, although it is essentially the judicial body of the United Nations -- which does make such a call in its charter, and which includes most of the same countries. I have included signature/ratification of the ICJ Statute in this data set, although I recommend that users employ the ICJ Optional Clause (see below) rather than simple ratification of the ICJ Statute, as the Optional Clause indicates acceptance of compulsory ICJ jurisdiction over disputes among member states.
- In general, all UN members are considered parties to the ICJ; the ICJ's web site simply provides a list of UN members to show which states are eligible to bring a case to the ICJ. There are several exceptions, though:
 - Switzerland, although not originally a UN member, has been a party to the ICJ statute since 7/28/1948 (following a General Assembly resolution of 12/11/1946)
 - four other non-UN members have been parties to the statute before joining the UN: Japan (4/2/1954), Liechtenstein (3/29/1950), San Marino (2/18/1954), & Nauru (1/29/1988)
- Note: the ICJ allows participation for states that are not parties to the ICJ statute but that have made declarations recognizing the jurisdiction of the ICJ either for a particular case or for a general class of cases. These states are not coded as being "members" of the ICJ in this data set, but they are listed here for possible use by other scholars:
 - Particular: Albania (filed in 1947), Italy (1953)
 - General: Cambodia (1952), Ceylon (1952), FRG (1955-1956-1961-1965-1971), Italy (1955), Japan (1951), Laos (1952), Republic of Vietnam (1952)

Optional Clause

- Active for all years in which the ICJ was active (10/1945 - present).
 - many states' declarations regarding acceptance of the PCIJ optional clause outlasted the PCIJ, and were automatically extended to the ICJ. Where this happens, I have coded 10/1945 as the start date of acceptance of the ICJ optional clause (due to the entry into force of the ICJ at that time), although the PCIJ clause acceptance continues until 4/1946 (due to the termination of the PCIJ and the larger League of Nations system at that time).
- Many states' declarations under either the PCIJ or ICJ initially covered short periods of time (typically five or ten years), although some were made for more indefinite periods (such as "indefinitely" or "until modified or withdrawn"). When a limited declaration is later renewed, I code the initial declaration as the beginning of acceptance of compulsory jurisdiction, even if there is a slight gap (of several weeks or even months between the announced expiration of the initial declaration and the formal ratification of the revised declaration).
 - China/Taiwan raises a difficult question. I have currently coded China (COW state #710) as accepting compulsory jurisdiction from the declaration on 10/26/1946 through 1949 when the Nationalist Chinese moved to Taiwan/Formosa, at which point Taiwan (#713) is coded as accepting compulsory jurisdiction through 1971 when the PRC gets China's seat in the UN. The PRC declared on 12/5/1972 that they did not recognize the Nationalist Chinese government's 1946 declaration, and to this day has not declared its own acceptance of compulsory jurisdiction.

Optional Clause - Reservations

- These variables reflect the date at which the state (which must be an ICJ member) attached and withdrew reservations to its acceptance of the Optional Clause recognizing the ICJ's compulsory jurisdiction. Between these dates, the state had at least one reservation; these variables do not distinguish based on the number of reservations or their specific content, beyond indicating that the state placed at least one reservation on its acceptance of the Optional Clause.

Territorial Integrity?: No

ICJ Optional Clause

From Article 36 of the ICJ Statute:

- “1. The jurisdiction of the Court comprises all cases which the parties refer to it and all matters specially provided for in the Charter of the United Nations or in treaties and conventions in force.
2. The states parties to the present Statute may at any time declare that they recognize as compulsory ipso facto and without special agreement, in relation to any other state accepting the same obligation, the jurisdiction of the Court in all legal disputes concerning:
 - a. the interpretation of a treaty;
 - b. any question of international law;
 - c. the existence of any fact which, if established, would constitute a breach of an international obligation;
 - d. the nature or extent of the reparation to be made for the breach of an international obligation.
3. The declarations referred to above may be made unconditionally or on condition of reciprocity on the part of several or certain states, or for a certain time. “ (etc...)

Commonwealth of Nations

Dates of Qualification: 1/1971 - present

- The Commonwealth of Nations -- known until 1946 as the British Commonwealth of Nations -- began as a relatively informal grouping of former British possessions, without any charter or organizing treaty. It is generally regarded as beginning in its modern form with the 1931 Statute of Westminster, which recognized the Dominions (e.g. Canada and Australia) as equal members of the British Commonwealth of Nations, although united by common allegiance to the British Crown. Another milestone was the 1949 London Declaration that allowed independent republics (e.g. India) to remain as members.
- The Commonwealth of Nations did not qualify for this data set until the 22 January 1971 Singapore Declaration of Commonwealth Principles, which was the first explicit statement of the Commonwealth's guiding principles.
- A Commonwealth Charter was issued in 2013, but it does not contain any explicit obligations for pacific dispute settlement or territorial integrity.
- There was no separate process of signature or ratification, because this was a general declaration issued at the 1971 Commonwealth summit; all Commonwealth members are regarded as being bound by this declaration as long as they remain in the organization
- Note that Ireland left the Commonwealth before the 1971 declaration in 4/1949; South Africa left in 5/1961, but rejoined in 6/1994; Pakistan left in 1/1972 and rejoined in 10/1989; Fiji left in 10/1987 and rejoined in 9/1997; and Zimbabwe left in 12/2003.
- Note that several member states were suspended from councils, but remained in the Commonwealth itself (and are thus considered to be bound by this declaration while suspended): Pakistan from 10/1999-5/2005, Nigeria from 11/1995-5/1999, Fiji from 6/2000-12/2001, and Zimbabwe from 3/2002-12/2003 (when it withdrew from the Commonwealth).

Singapore Declaration of Commonwealth Principles (22 January 1971)

"5. We believe that international peace and order are essential to the security and prosperity of mankind; we therefore support the United Nations and seek to strength its influence for peace in the world, and its efforts to remove the causes of tension between nations."

"11. We believe that international cooperation is essential to remove the causes of war, promote tolerance, combat injustice, and secure development among the peoples of the world; we are convinced that the Commonwealth is one of the most fruitful associations for these purposes."

"12. In pursuing these principles the members of the Commonwealth believe that they can provide a constructive example of the multi-national approach which is vital to peace and progress in the modern world. The association is based on consultation, discussion and cooperation."

"13. In rejecting coercion as an instrument of policy they recognize that the security of each member state from external aggression is a matter of concern to all members. It provides many channels for continuing exchanges of knowledge and views on professionsl, cultural, economic, legal and political issues among the member states."

Non-Aligned Movement (NAM)

Dates of Qualification: 9/1961 - present

- The NAM was founded at the 1961 Belgrade summit, which lasted from 1-6 September 1961. Although no formal treaty or constitution was created, the group was intended to be based on the ten principles that had been established at the 1955 Bandung Conference, three of which qualify for this data set.
- These principles have been referred to as NAM's founding principles in numerous subsequent NAM meetings and declarations, several of which are noted below. Most important, the 1996 Cartagena Document on Methodology explicitly listed acceptance of these ten principles (which it listed in their entirety) as a primary criterion for admission to the NAM.

1955 Principles of Bandung (Dasa Suka Bandung)

- "2. Respect for the sovereignty and territorial integrity of all nations.
7. Refraining from acts or threats of aggression or the use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any country.
8. Settlement of all international disputes by peaceful means, such as negotiation, conciliation, arbitration or judicial settlement as well as other peaceful means of the parties' own choice, in conformity with the Charter of the United Nations."

9/1971 Lusaka Declaration on Peace, Independence, Development, Cooperation and Democratization of International Relations

- "11. The participants in the Conference of Non-Aligned Countries reaffirm, and attach special importance to, the following principles: ...respect for the sovereignty and territorial integrity of all States... refraining from the threat or use of force, and the principle of peaceful settlement of disputes.
12. The Conference declares that the following continue to be the aims of non-alignment: the pursuit of world peace and peaceful co-existence by strengthening the role of non-aligned countries within the United Nations so that it will be a more effective instrument against all forms of aggressive action and the threat or use of force against the freedom, independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity of any country... the settlement of disputes by peaceful means..."

3. Criteria for Admission

A. Members

"The main criterion the admission of new members should be the adherence to and respect for the principles and objectives of the Movement.

The aspiring country should have adopted an independent policy based on the coexistence of States with different political and social systems, and on Non-Alignment, in line with the Ten Bandung Principles which are the foundation for the movement."

Furthermore, many of the supposed 1960 entrants were not involved in the first summit according to NYT stories at the time, so those listed in the NYT stories are coded as beginning in 9/1961 and the remaining states listed by COW as beginning in 1960 are coded here as entering in 1962.)

Organization of Islamic Cooperation/Organization of the Islamic Conference (OIC)

Dates of Qualification: 2/1973 - present

- The Charter of the Islamic Conference was signed on 4 March 1972, and went into effect on 28 February 1973.
- Note that Palestine is a charter member of the OIC.
- It is unclear when Southern Yemen (Aden/PDRY) joined. It isn't listed in the UN treaty details, but it is listed in online OIC documents from that era, so I have it listed as a member when the OIC took effect. (Yemen/YAR is clearly a member by this time.)

Article II: Objectives and Principles

A. Objectives

"The objectives of the Islamic Conference shall be:

1. to promote Islamic solidarity among member States;
4. to take necessary measures to support international peace and security founded on justice;
7. to create a suitable atmosphere for the promotion of cooperation and understanding among member States and other countries."

B. Principles

"The member States decide and undertake that, in order to realize the objectives mentioned in the previous paragraph, they shall be inspired and guided by the following principles:

3. Respect of the sovereignty, independence, and territorial integrity of each member State;
4. Settlement of any conflict that may arise by peaceful means such as negotiation, mediation, reconciliation or arbitration;
5. Abstention from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity, national unity or political independence of any member State."

WESTERN HEMISPHERE TREATIES

Treaty on Compulsory Arbitration

Dates of Qualification: 4/1903 - present

- Signed at the Second International Conference of American States in Mexico City on 29 January 1902; entered into force in April 1903.
- This still appears to be in force (and unlike most Latin American peaceful settlement treaties, it was not superseded by the 1948 Pact of Bogotá).
- The treaty was signed but never ratified by Argentina and Paraguay; Venezuela signed the treaty but withdrew from the 1901-2 conference, invalidating its adherence (Scott 1931: 104)
- Several discrepancies are listed in several books:
 - Ireland (1938: 308) indicates that Bolivia ratified the treaty, while the OAS and other sources indicate that this never happened
 - Carnegie (1940: 501) indicates that Honduras signed, ratified, and deposited this treaty, none of which is mentioned by the OAS or Ireland

1902 Treaty on Compulsory Arbitration

Article 1: "The High Contracting parties bind themselves to submit to the decision of arbitrators all disputes that exist or may arise between them, which they may not be able to settle by diplomatic means, whenever, in the exclusive judgment of any of the interested nations, such disputes do not affect the national independence or the national honor."

Article 2: "Neither the national independence nor the national honor shall be considered as imperilled by any dispute about diplomatic privileges, rights of navigation, or the validity, interpretation, and fulfillment of treaties."

Article 3: "...the High Contracting Parties agree to submit to the decision of the Permanent Court of Arbitration, established by the said Convention, all the disputes, to which reference is made in this treaty, unless any of the parties should prefer that a special tribunal should be organized."

Article 6: "The High Contracting Parties stipulate that, in case of grave disagreement or conflict between two or more of them, such as to render war imminent, recourse shall be had, so far as circumstances permit, to the good offices or mediation of one or more of the friendly Powers."

1907 General Treaty of Peace and Amity (Central American Court of Justice)

Dates of Qualification: 3/1908 - 3/1918

- This treaty was signed at Washington on 20 December 1907. It apparently took effect in March 1908 after all five signatory states had ratified it.
- This treaty was associated with the formation of the Central American Court of Justice, which was created at the same conference.
- The CACJ and the treaty both ended on 12 March 1918, following Nicaragua's 9 March 1917 notice of intention to terminate the 1907 convention relating to the court with one year's notice. (Hudson 1932: 781)
- This treaty was originally excluded from the MTOPS data set because Costa Rica was not a member of the COW system while it was in effect, leaving there only four system members. Costa Rica was clearly an independent and sovereign actor during this time, though, and it would soon meet the COW threshold for system membership.

- This treaty was associated with the formation of the International Central American Tribunal, which was created at the same conference.

Rio Pact

Dates of Qualification: 12/1948 - present

- Established by the Inter-American Treaty of Reciprocal Assistance (Rio Pact), which was signed 2 September 1947 at Rio de Janeiro and entered into force on 3 December 1948 once two-thirds of all signatories has deposited their ratification instruments with the Pan American Union
- Cuba is coded as leaving the Rio Pact in January of 1962, although technically Cuba remains a member. Cuba was excluded from all participation in the inter-American system at this time (during the Eighth Meeting of Consultation of Ministers of Foreign Affairs, held in Punta del Este) for incompatibility with the principles of the OAS Charter, which effectively renders Cuba's membership meaningless.
- Peru denounced the treaty on 22 January 1990, but withdrew the denunciation on 16 December 1991. Peru is not coded as leaving the treaty and returning because Article 25 of the treaty provides that denunciations require two years before they take effect.
- Mexico denounced the treaty on 6 September 2002, but (as of July 2006) has not yet withdrawn from it.

Article 7: "In the case of a conflict between two or more American States, without prejudice to the right of self-defense in conformity with Article 51 of the Charter of the United Nations, the High Contracting Parties, meeting in consultation shall call upon the contending States to suspend hostilities and restore matters to the statu quo ante bellum, and shall take in addition all other necessary measures to reestablish or maintain inter-American peace and security and for the solution of the conflict by peaceful means. Dates of Qualification: 12/1951 - present

- Established by the Charter of the Organization of American States, signed at Bogota on 30 April 1948; came into force on 13 December 1951, when two-thirds of all signatory states had deposited their ratifications with the Pan American Union

--(the charter has subsequently been amended in 1967, 1985, 1992, and 1993)

- All signatories are coded as members from the organization's official entry into force, including six who would not ratify their OAS signatures for several more years: Argentina (ratified 5/10/56), Chile (6/5/53), Cuba (7/16/52), Guatemala (4/6/55), Peru (2/12/54), and Uruguay (9/1/55).

Pact of Bogotá

Dates of Qualification: 5/1949 - present

- Signed in Bogotá at the Ninth International Conference of American States on 30 April 1948; entered into effect on 6 May 1949
- The Pact is only considered in force for signatories that have deposited formal instruments of ratification; simply signing the Pact is not enough
 - a number of countries have signed but not ratified the Pact: Argentina (signed 4/30/1948), Bolivia (4/30/1948), Cuba (4/30/1948), Ecuador (4/30/1948), Guatemala (4/30/1948), United States (4/30/1948), Venezuela (4/30/1948)
- The date given for each country is the date on which the instrument of ratification was deposited, according to the OAS web site
 - this often differs from the date on which the Pact was ratified, usually by one-three months, with two longer exceptions: Chile (8/21/1967 - 4/15/1974) and Haiti (8/21/1950 - 3/28/1951)
- This Pact replaces a number of earlier Inter-American agreements for states that have signed and ratified it. Many of these treaties are also included in the MTOPS data, and are considered to be ongoing for the affected states because they remain valid for relations with other states that have not yet signed and ratified the Pact of Bogotá. Affected treaties include:
 - 5/3/1923 Treaty to Avoid or Prevent Conflicts between the American States (Gondra)
 - 1/5/1929 General Convention of Inter-American Conciliation
 - 1/5/1929 General Treaty of Inter-American Arbitration and Additional Protocol of Progressive Arbitration

Andean Community (CAN)

- The Andean Community of Nations (CAN) was first created by the 16 August 1966 Cartagena Agreement, although that agreement did not contain any provisions that qualify for the MTOPS data set.
- The 1989 Galápagos Declaration is the first CAN document that qualifies; it has subsequently been followed by several more detailed efforts along the same lines, notably the 2002 Lima Commitment and 2004 Declaration of San Francisco de Quito.
- Note that Venezuela indicated in 2006 that it was withdrawing from the community, but this withdrawal did not take full effect until April 2011.

Cartagena Agreement / Andean Subregional Integration Agreement (16 August 1966)

- The preamble to this agreement lists peace as one of the founding principles ("Based on the principles of equality, justice, peace, solidarity, and democracy"), but the agreement focuses on economic and social issues. The agreement includes several references to dispute settlement, but it is not clear on whether the provisions for dispute settlement are limited to disputes over the agreement itself; because there is no mention to the use of force or peace in the 139 articles of the treaty, I believe that these provisions are indeed limited in this way. One example of this is Article 36 ("In proceedings where the interests of two or more Member Countries are in dispute, the Secretary General shall enjoy the technical assistance of special experts, whose appointment and method of participation shall be determined according to the General Secretariat Regulations.") The other is in Chapter XX ("Temporary Provisions"): "Third. The Andean Community Commission may establish an arbitral mechanism to settle disputes among Member Countries that extend beyond the General Secretariat's decision."
- Sucre Protocol (25 June 1997): This protocol modifies the Cartagena Agreement, but it does not appear to add any new provisions that would qualify for MTOPS. The only potentially relevant change is to the wording of the third temporary provision in the original agreement, which now reads "Third: The Andean Community Commission may set up an arbitration mechanism for settling disputes between member Countries that continue to exist after the General Secretariat has handed down its judgment."

German Confederation

Dates of Qualification: 1/1816 - 8/1866

- Established by an Act of Confederation that was signed on 8 June 1815 and was attached to the Final Act of the Congress of Vienna (coded in this data set as beginning on 1 January 1816, the date on which the COW interstate system began).

--dissolved following the Seven Weeks War (Austro-Prussian War).

- A number of other entities were members of the confederation. Several of these later joined the COW system, long after the end of the confederation (Luxembourg and Liechtenstein). Several dozen others were small entities that did not qualify for system membership (e.g. Mecklenburg-Strelitz, Anhalt-Dessau, Brunswick-Lüneburg, and the free cities of Lübeck, Frankfurt am Main, Bremen, and Hamburg).

- The ATOP codesheet for this alliance notes that it was suspended on 3/31/1848 due to the 1848 revolutions and Austro-Prussian conflict, although reinstated on 11/29/1850; it was terminated for good due to the Seven Weeks War between Austria, Prussia, and their respective allies. Hanover and Mecklenburg-Schwerin were original members but didn't join the COW system until 1838 and 1843. The terms changed a bit on 5/15/1820 with the Final Act of the Congress of Vienna, but that doesn't affect the confederation's qualification for MTOPS.

Article XVIII, 1820 Final Act: "As concord and peace are to be maintained and undisturbed among the members of the Confederation, if the internal tranquility and security of the Confederation be in any way threatened or disturbed, the Diet has to take counsel upon the measures of preserving or re-establishing them, and to pass the resolutions adopted thereto."

Article XXI, 1820 Final Act: "In all differences between Members of the Confederation submitted to the Diet by virtue of the Federal Act, the Diet shall first try the way of conciliation by means of a Committee. Locarno

Dates of Qualification: 10/1925 - 3/1936

• This is one of five related treaties that were signed at Locarno in October 1925 (formally signed in London in December) to settle borders, renounce the offensive use of force, and call for arbitration of differences. While seven states were involved in the Locarno treaties (France, Germany, Belgium, Britain, Italy, Poland, and Czechoslovakia), they were divided across five treaties, only one of which had enough signatories to qualify for this data set:

- (1) Treaty of Mutual Guarantee (signed by France, Germany, Belgium, Britain, Italy)
- (2) a bilateral Germany-France Arbitration Convention
- (3) a bilateral Germany-Belgium Arbitration Convention
- (4) a bilateral Germany-Czechoslovakia Arbitration Treaty
- (5) a bilateral Germany-Poland Arbitration Treaty.

• This treaty is coded as ending on 7 March 1936, when Germany denounced the treaty after remilitarizing the Rhineland. After Germany pulled out, the remaining four member states reaffirmed their obligations on 3/19/1936, but at that point the pact could only be described as a military alliance protecting Belgium; the provisions for territorial integrity and for peaceful dispute settlement all involved Germany, which was no longer a member state.

Qualifying Document(s)

Treaty of Mutual Guarantee between Germany, Belgium, France, Great Britain and Italy; ("Locarno Pact," signed October 16, 1925)

Article 1

"The High Contracting Parties collectively and severally guarantee, in the manner provided in the following Articles, the maintenance of the territorial status quo resulting from the frontiers between Germany and Belgium and between Germany and France, and the inviolability of the said frontiers as fixed by or in pursuance of the Treaty of Peace signed at Versailles on June 28, 1919, and also the observance of the stipulations of Articles 42 and 43 of the said treaty concerning the demilitarized zone."

Article 2

"Germany and Belgium, and also Germany and France, mutually undertake that they will in no case attack or invade each other or resort to war against each other.

This stipulation shall not, however, apply in the case of:

- (1) The exercise of the right of legitimate defense, that is to say, resistance to a violation of the undertaking contained in the previous paragraph or to a flagrant breach of Articles 42 or 43 of the said Treaty of Versailles, if such breach constitutes an unprovoked act of aggression and by reason of the assembly of armed forces in the demilitarized zone immediate action is necessary;
- (2) Action in pursuance of Article 16 of the Covenant of the League of Nations;
- (3) Action as the result of a decision taken by the Assembly or by the Council of the League of Nations or in pursuance of Article 15, paragraph 7, of the Covenant of the League of Nations, provided that in this last event the action is directed against a State which was the first to attack."

Article 3

"In view of the undertakings entered into in Article 2 of the present treaty, Germany and Belgium, and Germany and France, undertake to settle by peaceful means and in the manner laid down herein all questions of every kind which may arise between them and which it may not be possible to settle by the normal methods of diplomacy:

Any question with regard to which the Parties are in conflict as to its respective rights shall be submitted to judicial decision, and the parties undertake to comply with such decision.

All other questions shall be submitted to a conciliation commission. If the proposals of this commission are not accepted by the two Parties, question shall be brought before the Council of the League of Nations, which will deal with it in accordance with Article 15 of the covenant of the League.

The detailed arrangements for effecting such peaceful settlement are the subject of special Agreements signed this day."

Article 4

"(1) If one of the High Contracting Parties alleges that a violation of Article 2 of the present Treaty or a breach of Articles 42 or 43 of the treaty of Versailles has been or is being committed, it shall bring the question at once before the Council of the League of Nations.

(2) As soon as the Council of the League of Nations is satisfied that violation or breach has been committed, it will notify its finding without delay to the Powers signatory of the present Treaty, who severally agree that in such case they will each of them come immediately to the assistance of the Power against whom the act complained of is directed.

(3) In case of a flagrant violation of Article 2 of the present Treaty or of a flagrant breach of Articles 42 or 43 of the Treaty of Versailles by one of the High Contracting Parties, each of the other Contracting Parties hereby undertakes immediately to come to the help of the Party against whom such a violation or breach has been directed as soon as the said Power has been able to satisfy itself that this violation constitutes an unprovoked act of aggression and that by reason either of the crossing of the frontier or of the outbreak of hostilities or of the assembly of armed forces in the demilitarized zone immediate action is necessary. Nevertheless, the Council of the League of Nations, which will be seized of the question in accordance with the first paragraph of this Article, will issue its findings, and the High Contracting Parties undertake to act in accordance with the recommendations of the Council, provided that they are concurred in by all the Members other than the representatives of the Parties which have engaged in hostilities."

Article 5

"The provisions of Article 3 of the present Treaty are placed under the guarantee of the High Contracting Parties as provided by the following stipulations:

If one of the Powers referred to in Article 3 refuses to submit a dispute to peaceful settlement or to comply with an arbitral or judicial decision and commits a violation of Article 2 of the present Treaty or a breach of Articles 42 or 43 of the Treaty of Versailles, the provisions of Article 4 of the present Treaty shall apply.

Where one of the Powers referred to in Article 3, without committing a violation of Article 2 of the present Treaty or a breach of Articles 42 or 43 of the Treaty of Versailles, refuses to submit a dispute to peaceful settlement or to comply with an arbitral or judicial decision, the other Party shall bring the matter before the Council of the League of Nations, and the Council shall propose what steps shall be taken; the High Contracting Parties shall comply with these proposals."

Litvinov Protocol

Dates of Qualification: 2/1929 - 9/1939

- Established by the Treaty of the Renunciation of War, signed by Russia, Poland, Estonia, Latvia, and Romania on 9 February 1929. Turkey subsequently joined on 27 February 1929, Persia did on 3 April 1929, and Lithuania did on 5 April 1929.

--It is unclear when this treaty ends. The ATOP alliance data codes the associated alliance (a non-aggression pact) as ending 17 September 1939 with the Russian invasion of Poland, which appears to be the most reasonable date.

- This treaty was essentially an early application of the Kellogg-Briand Pact discussed above.

OSCE / CSCE / Helsinki Final Act

Dates of Qualification: 8/1975 - present (Helsinki Final Act)

CSCE/OSCE (general)

- The CSCE was first established with the 8 June 1973 "Final Recommendations of the Helsinki Consultations" (or "Blue Book") which addressed the scope and rules of procedure for the Conference; the membership list on the official OSCE web site dates admission of the original members to 25 June 1973 --the CSCE formally opened with a meeting of 35 foreign ministers in Helsinki from 3-9 July 1973, where the Blue Book was formally adopted
- Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro) was excluded from OSCE participation in July 1992
- Note: the CSCE/OSCE by itself doesn't qualify for this data set initially, because of its lack of calls for the peaceful settlement of political disputes. This changes with the Astana Declaration of December 2010, which was accepted by all OSCE members and qualifies as a peaceful settlement obligation.

Helsinki Final Act

- The Helsinki Final Act was signed 1 August 1975 under the CSCE; the official OSCE web site lists original signatures to 1 August
- Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro) was excluded from OSCE participation in July 1992
- The Helsinki Final Act was signed under the CSCE, although not all CSCE/OSCE members have signed or ratified it.
--a few states have joined the OSCE without signing or ratifying the Helsinki Final Act: Andorra (joined April 1996), Czech Republic (January 1993), Macedonia (December 1995), and Slovakia (January 1993)
- The 1990 Charter of Paris for a New Europe formalizes or extends a number of elements from the Helsinki Final Act, but it is not given a separate entry here because of the close overlap in purpose and signatory states.

Pacific Settlement?: Yes (Helsinki Final Act, or OSCE membership generally beginning with 12/2010 Astana Declaration)

Territorial Integrity?: Yes (violent) -- Helsinki Final Act only

- Note that much of the document looks like a general territorial integrity obligation, with explicit provisions for the inviolability of frontiers and the territorial integrity of states. Yet the initial point allowing the peaceful and lawful change of frontiers by mutual agreement means that this is a violent rather than general obligation.

Qualifying Document(s)

Helsinki Final Act

"Declaration on Principles Guiding Relations between Participating States" (section 1a under "Questions relating to Security in Europe")

Point I - Sovereign equality, respect for the rights inherent in sovereignty: "[all the participating States] consider that their frontiers can be changed, in accordance with international law, by peaceful means and by agreement."

Point II - Refraining from the threat or use of force: "The participating states will refrain in their mutual relations, as well as in their international relations in general, from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any State, or in any other manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations and with the present Declaration. No consideration may be invoked to serve to warrant resort to the threat or use of force in contravention of this principle.

Accordingly, the participating States will refrain from any acts constituting a threat of force or direct or indirect use of force against another participating State. Likewise they will refrain from any manifestation of force for the purpose of inducing another participating State to renounce the full exercise of its sovereign rights. Likewise they will also refrain in their mutual relations from any act of reprisal by force.

No such threat or use of force will be employed as a means of settling disputes, or questions likely to give rise to disputes, between them."

Point III - Inviolability of frontiers: "The participating states regard as inviolable all one another's frontiers as well as the frontiers of all States in Europe and therefore they will refrain now and in the future from assaulting these frontiers.

Accordingly, they will also refrain from any demand for, or act of, seizure and usurpation of part or all of the territory of any participating State."

Point IV - Territorial integrity of states: "The participating States will respect the territorial integrity of each of the participating States.

Accordingly, they will refrain from any action inconsistent with the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations against the territorial integrity, political independence or the unity of any participating State, and in particular from any such action constituting a threat or use of force.

The participating States will likewise refrain from making each other's territory the object of military occupation or other direct or indirect measures of force in contravention of international law, or the object of acquisition by means of such measures or the threat of them. No such occupation or acquisition will be recognized as legal."

Point V - Peaceful settlement of disputes: "The participating States will settle disputes among them by peaceful means in such a manner as not to endanger international peace and security, and justice.

They will endeavor in good faith and a spirit of cooperation to reach a rapid and equitable solution on the basis of international law.

For this purpose they will use such means as negotiation, enquiry, mediation, conciliation, arbitration, judicial settlement or other peaceful means of their own choice including any settlement procedure agreed to in advance of disputes to which they are parties.

In the event of failure to reach a solution by any of the above peaceful means, the parties to a dispute will continued to seek a mutually agreed way to settle the dispute peacefully.

Participating States, parties to a dispute among them, as well as other participating States, will refrain from any action which might aggravate the situation to such a degree as to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security and thereby make a peaceful settlement of the dispute more difficult."

2010 Astana Commemorative Declaration towards a Security Community

7. (...) "Increased efforts should be made to resolve existing conflicts in the OSCE area in a peaceful and negotiated manner, within agreed formats, fully respecting the norms and principles of international law enshrined in the United Nations Charter, as well as the Helsinki Final Act. New crises must be prevented. We pledge to refrain from the threat or use of force in any manner inconsistent with the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations or with the ten Principles of the Helsinki Final Act."

The creation of the CIS was finalized at the 12/21/1991 Alma-Ata summit with the "Protocol Establishing the CIS".
- The Alma-Ata Declaration's peaceful settlement provisions were elaborated in the Declaration on the Non-Use of Force or the Threat of Force in Relations between the CIS Member States (signed 3/20/1992) and the Charter of the Commonwealth of Independent States (signed 1/22/1993 at Minsk, and entered into force in January 1994). Because they cover the same basic provisions as the Alma-Ata Declaration and include almost all of the same states, though, those two documents are regarded as supplementary to the original document rather than as new MTOPS treaties or institutions.
- CIS Collective Security Treaty (1992): Nine members of the former Soviet Union signed this treaty in 1992. Six of them (Armenia, Belarus, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Russia and Tajikistan) signed a renewal of the treaty in 2002 that created the Collective Security Organization as a separate entity, while the other three (Azerbaijan, Georgia and Uzbekistan) declined to do so, and thus left the organization. This treaty does not qualify for MTOPS because it only addresses the peaceful settlement of issues related to the treaty itself. Article 9: "Any questions which may arise among the (parties) regarding their interpretation or implementation of this treaty shall be settled jointly in the spirit of friendship, mutual respect and mutual understanding..."

Alma-Ata Declaration (signed 12/21/1991)

Declaration on the Non-Use of Force or the Threat of Force in Relations between the CIS Member States (signed 3/23/1992)

"The Commonwealth member states:

- noting that rejection of using force or threatening its use, which is enshrined in the UN Charter and the CSCE Final Act, is an obligation which all states must observe,
- confirming their obligations to tackle all contentious problems by exclusively peaceful means, as was stated by the CIS heads of state in Alma-Ata on 21 December 1991 and in Minsk on 14 February 1992,
- with the aim of ending bloodshed and localizing and averting tension,
- and guided by the desire of the peoples of the Commonwealth for peace, security, and good-neighborliness, declare as follows:

Member states

1. Do not permit the use of force or the threat of its use
6. In the event of disputes arising between them, they will apply their efforts conscientiously and in a spirit of cooperation to reach a fair decision based on international law, within a short period of time.

To these ends, they will use such means for the peaceful settlement of disputes as talks, investigation, mediation, reconciliation, arbitration, court examination, or other peaceful means of their own choosing, including any procedure for settlement that was agreed before the disputes occurred and to which they may have been party, and apply the principles, tenets, and norms for the peaceful settlement of disputes that have been developed within the framework of the UN Organization and the CSCE.

7. Encourage the use of various forms of people's diplomacy and public initiative with the aim of averting the threat of inter-state conflicts.

8. Support the efforts of the international community and its instruments to settle conflicts on the territory of the Commonwealth states."

Charter of the Commonwealth of Independent States (signed 1/22/1993)

Article 2: "The objectives of the Commonwealth shall be: (...)

--peaceful settlement of disputes and conflicts among the States of the Commonwealth."

Article 3: "For the achievement of the Commonwealth's objectives, the Member States shall, proceeding from the universally recognized norms of international law and the Helsinki Final Act, organize their relationships in accordance with the following interconnected principles of equal value: (...)

--respect for the sovereignty of member states, for the inalienable right of peoples to self-determination, and for the right to determine their future without external interference;

--inviolability of state borders, recognition of existing borders, and rejection of unlawful territorial acquisitions;

--territorial integrity of states and rejection of any actions aimed at dismembering another state's territory;

--the settlement of disputes by peaceful means, in order to avoid threatening international peace, security, and justice;

--the supremacy of international law in interstate relations; (...)"

Article 17: "The Member States of the Commonwealth shall refrain from actions liable to injure other Member States or lead to aggravation of latent disputes.

The Member States shall make efforts, in a spirit of good faith and cooperation, towards the just and peaceful resolution of their disagreements by means of negotiations, or the reaching of an understanding on a proper alternative procedure for dispute settlement.

Should the Member States fail to resolve a dispute through the means mentioned in the second paragraph of this Article, they may refer the matter to the Council of Heads of State."

Article 18: "The Council of Heads of State shall be empowered to recommend to the parties an appropriate procedure or methods for settling, at any stage of its evolution, a dispute whose continuation could threaten the maintenance of peace or security within the Commonwealth."

GUAM Organization for Democracy and Economic Development

Dates of Qualification: 6/2001 - present (Yalta GUUAM Charter)

- This organization's name is an acronym for the names of the members (Georgia, Ukraine, Azerbaijan, and Moldova, all of which joined at the beginning in 1997). It was briefly known as GUUAM while Uzbekistan was a member, joining in 1999 but then leaving in May 2005.
- When the organization was founded in 1997, it did not yet qualify because it did not have an explicit treaty or agreement listing the group's principles or obligations. It qualified with the signature of the 2001 GUUAM Charter at Yalta; numerous subsequent agreements and declarations reinforce the same principles.
- Note that while Uzbekistan's departure leaves the group with only four members after 2005, the group can stay in the data set (as long as the other members keep it active) because it previously qualified.

Stability Pact for South Eastern Europe (Balkan Stability Pact)

Dates of Qualification: 6/1999 - present

• According to the Pact's official web site, only nine of the roughly forty signatory entities are considered "countries of the region": six original signatories (Albania, Bosnia-Herzegovina, Bulgaria, Croatia, Macedonia, and Romania) as well as Serbia/Yugoslavia (10/2000), Moldova (6/2001), and Montenegro (6/2006). The Pact was co-signed by a number of other powers and institutions, including the United States, Russia, Hungary, Turkey, Canada, Japan, EU, OSCE, Council of Europe, UN, NATO, OECD, WEU, IMF, World Bank, European Investment Bank, and European Bank for Reconstruction and Development. These additional actors are not recorded by MTOPS as being bound by the treaty, because they had specific roles in the treaty (defined in Articles 17-32) and are intended more as partners, observers, or guarantors.

AFRICAN TREATIES

OAU/African Union

Dates of Qualification: 9/1963 - present (OAU 9/1963-7/2002, AU 5/2001 - present)

OAU

- Established by the Charter of the Organization of African Unity, signed at Addis Adaba on 25 May 1963; entered into force on 13 September 1963.

--the OAU was disbanded on 9 July 2002, about a year after its successor (the AU) officially entered into force.

- Three members' entry dates are listed differently in Appendix G of C.O.C. Amate's Inside the OAU: Pan-Africanism in Practice, although the author notes that he doesn't have complete records and in some cases estimated the official entry date: Angola (he lists 2/23/76), Kenya (2/24/64), and Zambia (2/26/65).

African Union

- Established by the AU Constitutive Act, signed at Lome, Togo on 11 July 2000; entered into force on 26 May 2001

See also the July 1964 Cairo Declaration on Border Disputes among African States, which was passed by the OAU's Assembly of Heads of State and Government in its first annual meeting (but which doesn't qualify for the MTOPS data set by itself because it was a legislative resolution rather than a separate treaty):

"Considering that border disputes constitute a grave and permanent factor of dissension;

Conscious of the existence of extra-African maneuvers aimed at dividing African states;

Considering further that the borders of African States, on the day of their independence, constitute a tangible reality;

Recalling the establishment in the course of the Second Ordinary Session of the Council of the Committee of Eleven charged with studying further measures for strengthening African Unity;

Recognizing the imperious necessity of settling, by peaceful means and within a strictly African framework, all disputes between African States;

Recalling further that all African States have pledged, under Article IV of the Charter of African Unity, to respect scrupulously all principles laid down in paragraph 3 of Article III of the Charter of the Organization of African Unity:

I. SOLEMNLY REAFFIRMS the strict respect by all member states of the Organization for the principles laid down in paragraph 3 of Article III of the Charter of the Organization of African Unity;

African and Malagasy Union for Defense (UAMD)

Dates of Qualification: 12/1961 - 3/1964

- The African and Malagasy Union (UAM), or African-Malagasy/Afro-Malagasy Union, was known more informally as the Brazzaville Group. This group of (mostly) former French colonies initially included Benin (then Dahomey), Burkina Faso (Upper Volta), Cameroon, the CAR, Chad, Congo, Gabon, Ivory Coast, Madagascar, Mauritania, Niger, Senegal. They were later joined by Rwanda (March 1963) and Togo (July 1963).
- The UAM's charter was signed at Tananarive in September 1961. The charter doesn't qualify for MTOPS, as the charter is too vague ("in order to... maintain peace in Africa, in Malagasy, and in the world.").
- The union's defense pact -- the African and Malagasy Union for Defense (UAMD) -- does qualify. This was signed in December 1961.
- UAM was dissolved on 10 March 1964 and replaced by the African and Malagasy Union for Economic Cooperation (UAMCE). The UAMCE was intended to focus exclusively on economic, technical, and cultural problems; UAM's defense union ceased to exist in its previous form; the ATOP alliance data set's codesheet for this case notes that UAMCE did not have an alliance component that was comparable.
- UAMCE was then replaced by the African and Malagasy Common Organization (OCAM), which was established by a 27 June 1966 treaty signed at Tananarive ("Charter of the African and Malagasy Common Organization" -- UN Treaty Series #9121). No dispute settlement or territorial integrity provisions appear in this charter.

Pacific Settlement?: Yes (regional)

Territorial Integrity?: No

- Article 4 of the defense pact only talks about discussing how to defend each others' territorial integrity, presumably against an outside threat.

Qualifying Document(s)

Charter of the African and Malagasy Union: Doesn't qualify

- Article 2: "The UAM is founded on the solidarity uniting its members.

Its goal is to organize the cooperation of its members in all domains of foreign policy, in order to reinforce their solidarity, to assure their collective security, to foster their economic development, to maintain peace in Africa, in Malagasy, and in the world."

Defense Pact

- Article 1: "The parties undertake, in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations, to settle by peaceful means all international disputes in which they may be involved in such manner as not to jeopardize international peace and security, as well as justice, and to refrain in their international relations from resorting to threats and any form of aggression."
- Various articles the following provisions, inter alia: "parties to the pact would settle by peaceful means, in conformity with the UN Charter, all international differences in which they might become involved" and "the parties would consult each other on appropriate measures whenever the territorial integrity, political independence, or security of one of them was threatened" (IO 1962: 436)

Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS)

Dates of Qualification: 4/1978 - present (Protocol on Non-Aggression), 7/1993 - present (charter)

- The original ECOWAS Treaty (Treaty of Lagos) -- signed on 28 May 1975 -- does not qualify for MTOPS. It focused on economic and social matters, as reflected in Article 2 (Aims of the Community): "It shall be the aim of the Community to promote cooperation and development in all fields of economic activity particularly in the fields of industry, transport, telecommunications, energy, agriculture, natural resources, commerce, monetary and financial questions and in social and cultural matters for the purpose of raising the standard of living of its peoples, of increasing and maintaining economic stability, of fostering closer relations among its members and of contributing to the progress and development of the African continent."
- The 1978 Protocol on Non-aggression qualifies, with provisions for territorial integrity but not peaceful settlement (since non-aggression by itself does not qualify without a specific obligation to settle disputes peacefully). This has been supplemented (and all conflicting items replaced) by the 1999 Protocol Relating to the Mechanism for Conflict Prevention, Management, Resolution, Peacekeeping and Security, but to the best of my knowledge that protocol has not yet come into effect. I have been unable to find a definitive list of ratification status so far, and the document took provisional effect upon signature, but several sources note that it had not yet received the needed nine ratifications as of at least 2010.
- The revised charter of 1993 qualifies, with provisions for peaceful dispute settlement but not territorial integrity.

Pacific Settlement?: No (Protocol) / Yes (regional; Charter)

Territorial Integrity?: Yes/violent (Protocol) / No (Charter)

Qualifying Document(s)

Protocol on Non-Aggression (signed 22 April 1978)

Economic Community of Central African States (ECCAS)

Dates of Qualification: February 2000 - present (COPAX Protocol)

• The initial 1983 treaty establishing the community did not qualify for MTOPS, because while it called for the non-use of force to settle disputes it did not explicitly obligate the members to pursue peaceful methods of dispute settlement. The 2000 COPAX Protocol qualified, though.

Community of Sahel-Saharan States (Cen-Sad / COMESSA)

Dates of Qualification: 2/2000 - present

- This community was formed on 4 February 1998, with the signing of the Treaty on the Establishment of the Community of Sahel-Saharan States at the Conference of Leaders and Heads of State in Libya. The initial signatories were Libya, Burkina Faso, Mali, Niger, Chad, and Sudan. CAR and Eritrea joined during the community's first summit (April 1999); Senegal, Djibouti, and Gambia joined in February 2000; Egypt, Morocco, Nigeria, Somalia, and Tunisia joined in February 2001; Togo and Benin joined in March 2002; Cote d'Ivoire, Guinea-Bissau, and Liberia joined in May 2004; and Ghana and Sierra Leone joined in June 2005.
- I do not have a copy of the actual founding charter, but I have found numerous references to it. The charter does not seem to have any political dispute settlement provisions; this charter seems to have focused entirely on economic and social matters, including transportation infrastructure and education. One news story described the organization as being created "with the main aim of establishing an economic union based on a development plan that would be complementary to the national development plans of member countries. its aims include eliminating all restrictions to the free movement of persons, goods and capital, and freedom for nationals of member states to own property and carry out economic activity anywhere in the community."
- The community's February 2000 summit signed a security charter (which I've never seen) that relates to the settlement of conflicts. This probably qualifies for MTOPS, but the news stories varied quite a bit. By most descriptions, this charter prohibits the threat or use of force, requires member states to settle their problems peacefully, and commits members to try to stop hostile activities from its territory aimed at other member states.
- At the 15 March 2003 summit in Niamey, Niger, the community also signed the Protocol Establishing a Mechanism for Prevention, Management, and Resolution of Conflicts. According to one news story, the Mechanism's mandate is to contribute to the establishment of a peaceful Africa through collaboration with the UN and the AU's Peace and Security Council. Another story indicates that at this meeting, the participants "expressed their commitment to seeking peaceful solutions to existing or future conflicts between member states or with third-party state," "said they would promote conflict prevention and the culture of peace dialogue as a means of managing internal conflicts," and "agreed to develop those approaches and mechanisms for conflict prevention and the promotion of a culture of peace that already exist within their respective societies and to create a framework for exchanging experiences in that sphere." it is not clear whether all three of these items refer to contents of the Protocol, though.

Pacific Settlement?: Yes (regional)

Territorial Integrity?: No?

Qualifying Document(s)

- I haven't been able to find a copy of the actual treaties yet. It appears that both the 2000 and 2003 documents qualify for MTOPS, though.

South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation (SAARC)

Dates of Qualification: 12/1985 - present

- The SAARC Charter was signed on 8 December 1985 by Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, Maldives, Nepal, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka. Afghanistan is expected to join in 2006 or 2007, but as of July 2006 it has not been listed as a member on the official web site (<http://www.saarc-sec.org/>).
- 2004 Agreement on South Asian Free Trade Area (SAFTA): This agreement does not call for peaceful dispute settlement of political issues. The only dispute-related provisions in the agreement are for the settlement of disputes related to the treaty itself or the FTA that it is intended to create.

Pacific Settlement?: Yes (regional)

- Pacific settlement is mentioned in the charter's preamble, but there is no corresponding obligation in the actual text of the document.

Territorial Integrity?: Yes (general)

Qualifying Document(s)

1985 Charter of the South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation

Preamble

"Desirous of promoting peace, stability, amity and progress in the region through strict adherence to the principles of the United Nations Charter and Non-Alignment, particularly respect for the principles of sovereign equality, territorial integrity, national independence, non-use of force and non-interference in the internal affairs of other States and peaceful settlement of all disputes..."

Article II (Principles)

"1. Cooperation within the framework of the Association shall be based on respect for the principles of sovereign equality, territorial integrity, political independence, non-interference in the internal affairs of other States and mutual benefit."

- Note that the notion of peaceful dispute settlement has been dropped since it was first mentioned in the preamble. Most observers consider this omission unsurprising; SAARC has widely been regarded as a failure for being both unwilling and unable to do anything to settle the numerous disputes between India and Pakistan (the two largest economies in the organization), but attempting to include such an obligation in the charter would likely have prevented the organization's creation in the first place.

- The original member states were Afghanistan, Azerbaijan, China, Egypt, India, Israel, Iran, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Pakistan, "State of Palestine," Russia, Tajikistan, Turkey, and Uzbekistan. Mongolia joined in June 2001, and South Korea joined in June 2006.

Pacific Settlement?: Yes (regional)

Territorial Integrity?: Yes (general)

Qualifying Document(s)

Declaration of the Principles Guiding Relations among the CICA Member States (signed 14 September 1999)

Preamble: "Giving due attention to the prevention of disputes and conflicts and to their peaceful settlement; (...) Reaffirming their commitment to achieve full, just and lasting relations of peace, openness, mutual confidence, security, stability and cooperation in Asia by eliminating tensions, seeking peaceful settlement of disputes..."

"The Member States shall refrain in their relations from the direct or indirect threat or use of force against the sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence of the states, or any other manner inconsistent with the Charter of the United Nations and with the present Declaration. No considerations may be invoked to warrant resort to the threat of use of force in contravention of this principle.

No such threat or use of force will be employed as a means of settling disputes, or questions likely to give rise to disputes, between them."

III. Territorial Integrity of the Member States

"The Member States shall respect the territorial integrity of each other. They recognize the inviolability of state boundaries and therefore they shall refrain at present and in the future from any attempt to violate these boundaries.

The Member States shall likewise refrain from making each other's territory the subject of military occupation or other direct or indirect use of force in contravention of international law, or an object of acquisition by means of such measures or the threat of their implementation. Shanghai Cooperation Organization (SCO)

Dates of Qualification: 6/2001 - present

- The precursor to the SCO, the "Shanghai Five" regional grouping (China, Russia, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, and Tajikistan), was created in 1996. This grouping was renamed the Shanghai Forum in July 2000, and was broadened to the SCO in June 2001 with the addition of Uzbekistan. This organization appears to have been focused primarily on military cooperation, confidence building measures, and fighting terrorism and internal conflicts, at least initially. None of its treaties or declarations before 2001 appear to contain explicit calls for the pacific settlement of disputes among members, and indeed most news stories about the Five or the Forum refer to it as either a military alliance or an economic integration association.

- SCO was initially established as the "Shanghai Five" grouping (China, Russia, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, and Tajikistan) in April 1996, with the signing of the 4/25/96 "Agreement on Mutual Military Confidence-Building Measures." Treaties and declarations in the first five years of the grouping dealt with military confidence building measures and with cooperation against cross-border threats such as terrorism and crime, and did not qualify for inclusion in the MTOPS data. More details on these early treaties and declarations are provided in the documentation for the 2001 declaration.

--this organization qualified for the MTOPS data set on the basis of the 6/25/01 Declaration on the Establishment of the Shanghai Cooperation Organization, which also added Uzbekistan as a member.

- It does not appear that this document needed to be ratified, so for now it has been coded as entering into force for all six member states from the date of signature in June 2001.

Pacific Settlement?: Yes (regional)

Territorial Integrity?: Yes (general) -- see Article 5

Qualifying Document(s)

Declaration on the Establishment of the Shanghai Cooperation Organization (signed 6/15/2001)

Article 2: "The goals of the Shanghai Cooperation Organization are: to strengthen mutual trust, friendship, and good-neighborliness between the member states... and to undertake joint efforts for the maintenance of peace, security, and stability in the region..." [this appears to be aimed more at military confidence building and at fighting extremism]

Article 5: "The States members of the Shanghai Cooperation Organization firmly adhere to the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, the principles of mutual respect for independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity, equal rights and mutual advantage, resolution of all issues through joint consultations, non-interference in internal affairs, non-use or threat of use of military force, and renunciation of unilateral military advantage in contiguous areas."

Article 10: "The States members of the Shanghai Cooperation Organization shall strengthen the consultation mechanism and coordinate action on regional issues and international problems, provide mutual support and develop close cooperation on major international and regional issues, and jointly facilitate the consolidation of peace and stability in the region and throughout the world, believing that the preservation of global strategic balance and stability in the current international situation is of particular importance." [this appears to be aimed more at fighting extremism and at opposing U.S. goals such as the termination of the ABM Treaty]

Earlier (Non-Qualifying) Agreements

- 4/25/1996 "Agreement on Mutual Military Confidence-Building Measures": meant to create a buffer zone along international borders, patrolled only by frontier guards. This agreement also called for the annual exchange of "military data of mutual interest" such as troop movements and exercises, and required that the other signatories be notified and allowed to send observers to any military exercises near the border area.

- 4/24/1997 “Agreement on the Mutual Reduction of Military Forces in Border Areas”: meant to supplement the 1996 agreement by setting specific limits on troops and military hardware within 100 km from international borders.
- 7/3/1998 Joint statement from Alma-Ata meeting: meant to continue the development of cooperation among the Shanghai Five. The preamble mentions “Upholding the universally-accepted norms of mutual respect for sovereignty and territorial integrity... and in favor of solving the disputes and differences among the countries through friendly consultation,” but none of the actual statements in the document explicitly mentions peaceful settlement of disputes.
- 8/25/1999 Bishkek Declaration: makes general statements about cooperation, but intended primarily to address joint measures against international terrorism, drug trafficking, arms smuggling, illegal emigration, and cross-border criminal activities. This document comes closer than the others to qualifying for inclusion in the MTOPS data, based on the following two of four general principles to be observed in relations among the members and in international affairs: (1) “to be guided by mutual respect for sovereignty and territorial integrity...” and (3) “to help consolidate the role of the United Nations as the key mechanism for maintaining international peace and security, in a peaceful settlement of modern international regional problems and to oppose the use or threat of force, unsanctioned by the UN Security Council, in international relations.”
- 3/30/2000 Joint communiqué from Astana meeting: focused more on confidence building measures and cooperation against cross-border threats, but includes a statement that the five member states’ defense ministers “reiterate that the five countries have given consideration to... resolving disputes through friendly consultations.” This is not explicit enough to qualify for the MTOPS data set, but helped to set the stage for the following year’s creation of the SCO.
